1. SUMMARY OF DECISION- The United States Trustee (UST) filed a motion to dismiss for abuse under 11 USC § 707(b)(2) for failure to pass the Means Test or § 707(b)(3)(B) under the totality of circumstances. The debtors, while having recently suffered financial reverses due

1 largely to health issues, have the right to tap cash flow from their nonprofit religious corporation 2 and the ability to be gainfully employed (Adele¹). Allowing them a chapter 7 discharge would be 3 an abuse under § 707(b)(3)(B).

4 2. BACKGROUND-

5 The Debtors' Background- The debtors are pastors in a religious mission they have 6 pursued for, probably, over 15 years. Adele testified she is a homemaker, but also testified she is a 7 pastor, deeply committed to the Bearups' religious mission. Thomas is currently 64 and Adele is 8 52.

9 They both have Alaskan roots. Thomas was a law enforcement officer in Alaska and Adele 10 lived there, too. They went to Arizona (the exact date is unclear) and both attended Arizona 11 College of the Bible in 1993. They funded their education with student loans. The court recently 12 denied the debtors' request to declare these student loan obligations, having a current balance of 13 about $43,000 for Adele and $46,000 for Thomas, nondischargeable under 11 USC § 523(a)(8).²

14 FBFAA- After attending bible college, the debtors pursued their religious mission through 15 a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, Family Bible Fellowship and Academy (FBFAA), of which they 16 are the controlling members.

17 Personal Residence and Church Property in Arizona- They owned a home in their own 18 name in Phoenix. FBFAA owned a building in Phoenix where the Bearups operated a church.

19 In 2006, the Bearups sold their personal residence, receiving about $276,000 in cash. They 20 bought a mobile home, trailers, and spent about a over a year traveling around the lower United 21 States, deciding how next to continue their mission. They also paid their personal credit cards, 22 and assisted family members financially. Their debts appear to have been current at that time, 23

24 ¹ I will use the debtors' first names for ease of reference. No disrespect is intended by doing so.

25 ² See, judgment in Adv. No. A10-90024-HAR, Bearup v Educational Credit Management Corp., Docket 26 No. 48, entered May 16, 2011.

1 except for the student loan obligations, against which they paid nothing. They also used $40,000 2 to make a down payment on their current residence in Alaska. The $276,000 appears to have 3 been fully spent at the time the bankruptcy was filed on July 1, 2010.

4 In September 2008, FBFAA sold the church for $725,000. The record is not clear what 5 cash down was paid and what became of it, but FBFAA took back a $685,000 note and deed of 6 trust on the church property. The note and deed of trust wrapped a first deed of trust with a 7 balance of $175,000, so FBFAA's equity was $510,000.

8 The obligor on the FBFAA note has made the monthly payments regularly. They are made 9 to an escrow which pays part of each monthly installment to the underlying, first deed of trust 10 obligation, and the balance to FBFAA. The installment payments on the wraparound increased in 11 April 2011, and now pay FBFAA a little over $3,000 per month. The parties did not advise the 12 court about the current balance, but the court estimates that FBFAA's portion of the note 13 probably exceeds $450,000.

14 The Alaska Residence- The debtors decided to relocate back to Alaska. They bought a 15 home in their own names of about 4,000 square feet, a detached garage, and 31 acres in Soldotna, 16 in about July 2007. On this property, they intended to live and continue the religious mission of 17 FBFAA. The monthly payments on the property are $2,890 (including taxes)³ Due to Thomas' 18 illness and loss of income from Adele's child care enterprise (under the name, "The Ark"), 19 mortgage payments were not made from December 2009. The Alaska loan servicer began 20 foreclosure in about March 2010, triggering this bankruptcy case.

21 Thomas' Illness and Attempts to Find Work- After becoming ill in 2008, Thomas 22 underwent abdominal surgery in Mexico in April 2009. There were life threatening 23 complications and he had to undergo additional surgery in Alaska. He testified he was on the 24 verge of death, but was saved when his stomach was removed.

25 _____
26 ³ Amended Schedule J. Docket No. 55.

1 At his request, he was released for work by his physician in August 2010. He testified he 2 sought the release so he could start earning an income again. His family was in dire financial 3 straits due the illness and he wanted to work.

4 Since his medical release, he has tried finding work in the Soldotna area in law 5 enforcement, real estate and a ministry, all without success. He attributes this to his age, his 6 medical fragility and the stagnant economy.

7 Adele's Endeavors- When she returned to Alaska, Adele started a child care business in 8 2008, not to earn profit in the normal sense, but as an adjunct to the Bearups' ministry, which 9 envisioned serving unwed mothers. The business was called "The Ark," but was accounted for 10 under the FBFAA tax return. The Ark grossed $41,500 in 2009.⁴

11 The business was increasingly successful. The state welfare agency encouraged her to 12 expand and take on more children to care for. She took the training required by the state to run a 13 day care, and became certified. She eventually, employed two of her daughters to assist.

14 The business, despite its good start, started losing clients in the last half of 2009, through 15 no fault of hers she testified, but due to some adverse market dynamics. The state still encouraged 16 her to continue in the business, and she tried to do this, going to extraordinary measures to 17 advertise and promote the child care facility. Nonetheless, she closed it in April 2010, after 18 determining that continuing was hopeless.

19 She also made a small amount catering weddings.

20 Her testimony indicates to the court that she is a dynamic, energetic, forceful, innovative 21 person, who has devoted her life to her church for 14 years for no personal salary and no 22 employment benefits (such as health care). She is nonetheless capable of earning a decent salary 23 at any reasonable endeavor she chooses, and seems to be the type of person who would rise to the 24 top of almost any business she chose to pursue.

25 _____
26 ⁴FBFAA's Form 990 federal tax return. Trial Exhibit 4, page 36 of 48.

1 The Decline Precipitating Bankruptcy- The Bearups testified that they have not been able 2 to pay their Alaska mortgage since December 2009. They said they started paying Loan 3 Improvement Service, some type of Arizona loan consolidation service. They were told the 4 service would help consolidate their student loan debt, their credit card debt, get a short sale of 5 their mobile home, and a refinance of their Alaska deed of trust. They testified they made 6 payments from the end of 2009. The amount is not clear to the court but it may be about $15,000.
7 Adele said that Consumer Credit of Alaska had previously suggested the Bearups consider 8 bankruptcy, but this was rejected by the debtors, because they wanted to pay their bills.

9 The debtors suggest that this was an indication of their good faith. While their good faith 10 was not being challenged under § 707(b)(3)(A), this testimony was, nonetheless, not fully fleshed 11 out. The testimony seems to raise more questions than it answers. Didn't their 2011 credit card 12 statements show that no payments were being made? Since the student lenders had been so 13 nonaggressive in their collection efforts since 1993, why seek third party help instead of going to 14 the student lenders directly? Why go to an Arizona loan consolidator to deal with an Alaska real 15 estate lender? Unfortunately neither the parties nor the court sought clarification.

16 Their motive for eventually filing bankruptcy on July 1, 2010 was to clear their credit (i.e., 17 discharge about $250,000 of unsecured debt) so they could obtain refinancing or reduction of 18 their mortgage debt on their Alaska real estate. Although the property is titled to them in their 19 individual names, it is considered by the debtors to be a keystone to continuing their ministry.

20 In this bankruptcy case, they are trying to exclude the FBFAA income from their 21 bankruptcy estate.

22 FBFAA's Responsibilities for the Bearups' Obligations and Its Debt to Thomas- During 23 his ministry under FBFAA, Thomas was entitled to an parsonage allowance and salary from 24 FBFAA. He never drew the salary, but has an account receivable from FBFAA of about $650,000.
25 This was not reported as an asset on Thomas' bankruptcy schedules, although it was disclosed in 26

1 the process of the UST's investigation. This is not an insignificant omission, since FBFAA has 2 assets – it is the beneficiary of the promissory note with a balance of over $450,000 from the sale 3 of its Arizona property.

4 FBFAA also resolved to pay the Bearups' student loans, which it never did.

5 And, FBFAA was to pay the Bearups' advances for church activities. Much of the $158,000 6 credit card and store credit debt shown on the Bearups' Schedule B⁵ is attributable to 7 improvements on the Alaska property for church purposes (e.g., improving the child care facility 8 in the garage).

9 FBFAA paid the monthly mortgage on the Alaska property, when it was paid.

10 The Bearups testified that they viewed their ministry as a 24/7 commitment, and contend 11 that virtually all their endeavors, income and expenses were related to the church. To illustrate 12 this, they testified that they only occupied as personal space one bedroom and one bathroom in 13 their 4,000 square foot house. While it is unnecessary to determine what imponderable 14 percentage of their time or assets is devoted to the church exclusively, I do not accept their 15 shifting all their assets and income to the church to the extent this impairs their bankruptcy 16 creditors' legitimate rights to their assets and income.

17 The Debtor's Current and Potential Income and Expenses- Thomas gets $1,084.00 per 18 month from Social Security. In their schedules, the Bearups initially listed this as their only 19 income. They eventually amended, due to the UST's persistence, to include a $2,031 monthly 20 payment they had been receiving on a mobile home they had sold (which was a wash because of a 21 similar payment obligation to a lien holder), and $217.50 per month each for the Alaska 22 Permanent Fund dividend. This amended current income totaled $3,550.00. Their current 23

25
26 ⁵Docket No. 1-3.

1 expenditures on amended Schedule J are listed at $4,574.00. Thus, they claim to be underwater to 2 the tune of $1,024.00 per month.⁶

3 Their expenditures include $2,890.00 for their home mortgage (including taxes). The local 4 IRS Housing and Utility Standard (mortgage/rental expense) amount which is allowable on Line
5 20B(a) in the means test calculation is $952 for the Kenai Peninsula Borough.⁷

6 Thomas is 64 years old. His health has been compromised. Thus, his prospects for finding 7 work outside of his preference of being a pastor are not encouraging, despite his expertise in law 8 enforcement and real estate. Adele's prospects are, on the other hand, bright. She is only 52, 9 smart and proactive. She may prefer to remain as a unpaid servant of her ministry, but should she 10 chose to work elsewhere, she would prosper.

11 Debtors' and Counsel's Lack of Cooperation- There has been a lack of cooperation with 12 the UST by the debtors and their counsel which is a factor in this decision. Once it was apparent 13 that the UST thought FBFAA's income was attributable to the Bearups, the UST should have been 14 provided with all the available financial information he sought.

15 The UST had asked for financial information breaking down the accounting analysis in 16 individual enterprises (the church, The Ark, and the Ambassador Wedding Chapel), it should 17 have been provided. Although much paperwork was produced, it was not until the trial on May 18 9, 2011, that the debtors acknowledged they had Quicken Books and/or separate accountings for 19 each of the nonprofit segments.

20 A key element of the UST's case was that the church income was freely used to pay the 21 debtors' personal expenses, and the church income should have thus been acknowledged to some

1 degree as belonging to them individually for bankruptcy purposes. This failure of cooperation or 2 disclosure is an element in the court's finding against the debtors in this case.

3 3. ANALYSIS-

4 3.1. Standards of Proof and Burdens of Producing Evidence in a § 707(b)(3)(B) Case- The 5 UST bears the burden of showing abuse under the totality of the circumstances standard by a 6 preponderance of the evidence. "Once a prima facie case is established by the UST, the burden of 7 going forward with sufficient evidence to controvert the prima facie case is reposed in the 8 non-moving party, the Debtor."⁸

9 3.2. Canons for Deciding a § 707(b)(3)(B) Case- The statutory framework governing 10 dismissal for abuse under the totality of the circumstances is 11 USC § 707(b)(1, 3):

11 (b)

12 (1) After notice and a hearing, the court, on its own motion or on a 13 motion by the United States trustee, trustee (or bankruptcy 14 administrator, if any), or any party in interest, may dismiss a case 15 filed by an individual debtor under this chapter whose debts are 16 primarily consumer debts, or, with the debtor's consent, convert such a case to a case under chapter 11 or 13 of this title, if it finds that the granting of relief would be an abuse of the provisions of this chapter.

18 (3) In considering under paragraph (1) whether the granting of relief 19 would be an abuse of the provisions of this chapter in a case in which the presumption in paragraph (2)(A)(i) does not arise or is rebutted, the court shall consider-

20 (A) whether the debtor filed the petition in bad faith; or 21 (B) the totality of the circumstances (including whether the 22 debtor seeks to reject a personal services contract and the 23 financial need for such rejection as sought by the debtor) of the debtor's financial situation demonstrates abuse.

24 ⁸In re Perelman, 419 BR 168, 177-78 (Bankr. EDNY 2009) (citations omitted). The procedure for 25 handling a motion to dismiss for abuse under § 707(b)(1) is set out in 6 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 707.04[5] 26 (Matthew Bender on-line 2011).

1 Where the presumption of abuse does not arise under the means test, § 707(b)(2), a 2 bankruptcy court is directed to (“shall”) determine if grounds for dismissal for abuse exist under 3 § 707(b)(3)(B).⁹ For example, the case of a below-median-income debtor can be dismissed under 4 the totality of the circumstances where the debtor obtained a good post-petition job and could 5 have funded a chapter 13 plan paying his unsecured creditors about 20% of their claims.¹⁰

6 3.3. Post-BAPCPA Abuse Under Totality of the Circumstance– Before BAPCPA, the 7 Ninth Circuit relied on a test under the prior law for “substantial abuse” set out in In re Price.¹¹ 8 BAPCPA changed changed dismissal for “substantial abuse” to just dismissal for “abuse,” a more 9 relaxed standard. After BAPCPA, there is not presumption favoring a chapter 7 discharge.¹² 10 Nonetheless, In re Price continues as a guide for cases in the Ninth Circuit in interpreting a 11 “totality of the circumstances” abuse issue.¹³

12 Here are the six non-exclusive Price factors for finding “substantial” abuse under the 13 totality of the circumstances are:

- 14 (1) Whether the debtor has a likelihood of sufficient future income to fund a 15 Chapter 11, 12, or 13 plan which would pay a substantial portion of the unsecured 16 claims;
17 (2) Whether the debtor's petition was filed as a consequence of illness, disability, 18 unemployment, or some other calamity;
19 (3) Whether the schedules suggest the debtor obtained cash advancements and 20 consumer goods on credit exceeding his or her ability to repay them; 21 (4) Whether the debtor's proposed family budget is excessive or extravagant;

21 ⁹In re McUne, 357 BR 397, 399 (Bankr. D. Or. 2006).

22 ¹⁰In re Pak, 343 BR 239, 244-46 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006). See, also, In re Boyce, 446 BR 447, 452-53 (D.
23 Or. 2011).

24 ¹¹In re Price, 353 F3d 1135, 1139-40 (9th Cir. 2004).

25 ¹²In re Egebjerg, 574 F3d 1045, 1048 (9th Cir. 2009).

26 ¹³In re Stubblefield, 430 BR 639, 645-46 (Bankr. D. Or. 2010).

1 (5) Whether the debtor's statement of income and expenses is misrepresentative of 2 the debtor's financial condition; and

3 (6) Whether the debtor has engaged in eve-of-bankruptcy purchases.¹⁴

4 3.4. Application of In re Price to This Case- The second Price factor (illness as the cause 5 of filing) favors the debtors, but the first (ability to fund a chapter 13 plan) and fifth 6 (misrepresentations in debtors' statement of income and expense) favor a finding of abuse.

7 UST has proved a prima facie case under § 707(b)(3)(B) for abuse under the totality of the 8 circumstances. The debtors have not come forward with sufficient evidence to overcome the 9 prima facie case.¹⁵ If their Quicken Books and accounting records which were not fully or 10 adequately disclosed to the UST contained information which would have saved their discharge, 11 they did not present it to the court.

12 A "totality of the circumstances" test implies a balancing. I acknowledge the severe drain 13 on the debtors' earning capacity due to Thomas' illness, not only because it impaired his ability to 14 work, but it required Adele to act as his caregiver. But, he was released for work in August 2010.

15 On the other hand, in Adele's testimony to establish the sincerity of her effort to make a 16 success of her child care and wedding catering business, she also established that she has the 17 ability to work at a non-church job to make a good living and pay some or all of her unsecured 18 debt in a chapter 13 plan. She testified she has worked 24/7 for the church, does not have health 19 insurance, and will continue to do so regardless of how I rule. The question is whether she is 20 entitled to a chapter 7 discharge if she chooses to give her labor to the church when she could use 21 it to fund a chapter 13 plan. I do not believe she is entitled to a chapter 7 discharge if she does.¹⁶

24 ¹⁴In re Price, 353 F3d 1135, 1139-40 (9th Cir. 2004).

25 ¹⁵*See*, discussion in section 3.1 of this memorandum.

26 ¹⁶In re Pak, 343 BR 239, 241-44 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006).

1 This issue is similar to a student loan case in which the minister-debtor was not able to 2 discharge a student loan because he was capable of earning substantially more at another job for 3 which he was qualified, than a minister.¹⁷ The legal issues are not exactly the same because 4 different statutes are involved, but the underlying principles are the same. You are not entitled to 5 a bankruptcy discharge if you chose to be “underemployed,” either in a totality of the 6 circumstances abuse situation or in a student loan context.

7 With respect to both debtors: (a) Thomas has an unpaid account of $650,000 due from 8 FBFAA for past wages; (b) FBFAA assumed the obligation to pay Thomas’ $46,000 and Adele’s
9 $43,000 student loans to ECMC; (c) FBFAA has agreed to pay the expenses incurred by the church 10 (over $150,000 of unsecured credit cards debt and store accounts are, in large part, due to church 11 activities); and, (d) FBFAA is payee of a $450,000-$500,000 equity in a note currently paying over 12 $3,000 per month to FBFAA (the note is current). This scenario presents a prima facie case under 13 § 707(b)(3)(B) for abuse. There are funds owed to the debtors by FBFAA. There is a note capable 14 of paying much of debtors’ unsecured debt. Debtors have tried to keep those funds out of the 15 bankruptcy estate, but the estate is entitled to them. They are probably enough to pay the 16 creditors 100%, over time.

17 Debtors have argued that the promissory note due to FBFAA is secured by Phoenix 18 property which is worth much less than the value of the note because of the poor Arizona real 19 estate market. They attempted to offer incompetent testimony for this proposition, which was 20 not allowed. For now, the note is being paid. But, even if the note is eventually dishonored, it is 21 the basis for a chapter 13 plan, which could have been modified in the event circumstances 22 changed.

23 Between the FBFAA note and Adele’s potential income, there would be enough to fund a 24 chapter 13 plan. None has been proposed. I conclude that there is abuse under § 707(b)(3)(B).

25 _____
26 ¹⁷Oyler v Educational Credit Mgt. Corp. (In re Oyler), 397 F3d 382, 386 (6th Cir. 2005).

1 Finally, the court also concludes the fifth element of Price, misrepresentation of income 2 and expenses, favor granting the trustee's motion under § 707(b)(3)(B).

3 4. CONCLUSION- This memorandum addresses only abuse under § 707(b)(3)(B). In the 4 interest of deciding the dispute as soon as possible, I adopted the Occam's Razor approach of 5 seeking the simplest solution. If reversed, however, I will revisit the substantial case presented by 6 the UST for dismissal for abuse for failure to pass the Means Test under § 707(b)(2).

7 Finally, nothing in this memorandum is intended to denigrate the Bearups or their 8 religious mission. I cannot say that I ever thought that they volitionally lied on the stand. I do 9 believe, however, that their personal narrative or memory of the past, like most of people in 10 conflict, is colored. As a homely example, they had no problem deferring for almost two decades 11 repayment of their student loans when they had the opportunity to pay them down.

12 I believe they are basically sincere, decent people caught in a tough financial place. In the 13 end, this memorandum holds that when there is a clash between debtors desire to continue their 14 mission versus their duty to pay their creditors, if they can, they must forfeit their right to a 15 chapter 7 discharge if they chose their mission over the creditors.

16 A separate order of dismissal of the case will be entered.
